Failure to agree with such determination shall be a dispute within the meaning of the Disputes section of this Contract. Purchaser may withhold from any amounts due Contractor such sum as Purchaser determines to be necessary to protect Purchaser from potential loss or liability .
- 69.3. Contractor shall pay amounts due Purchaser or DIS as the result of termination within thirty (30) calendar days of notice of the amounts due. If Contractor fails to make timely payment, Purchaser or DIS may charge interest on the amounts due at one percent (1%) per month until paid in full.

70. Covenant Against Contingent Fees

Contractor warrants that no person or selling agency has been employed or retained to solicit or secure this Contract upon any agreement or understanding for a commission, percentage, brokerage, or contingent fee, except bona fide employees or a bona fide established commercial or selling agency of Contractor.
- 70.2. In the event Contractor breaches this section, Purchaser shall have the right to either annul this Contract without liability to Purchaser, or, in Purchaser's discretion, deduct from payments due to Contractor, or otherwise recover from Contractor, the full amount of such commission, percentage, brokerage, or contingent fee.

Schedule C Escalation Procedures

for Contract Number T11-PCH-525
with Capacity Provisioning, Inc.

CPI's Escalation Procedure is very straightforward because all calls, normal and emergency, are handled by either a senior officer or most commonly by a senior engineer. We are highly confident that our extensive monitoring and trouble reporting will alert us to any problem, in almost all cases, before the end user is even aware of it.

Trouble is reported by a battery of monitors and alerting systems and includes device polling and active notification. We monitor end user premise devices for availability, and edge and core devices for link failures, port conditions, fan and temperature thresholds and security-related data. We monitor our environments for temperature, humidity and unauthorized access. Our monitoring systems run both industry standard and proprietary software that processes the results of this monitoring and alerts us in a variety of ways to assure that notifications are delivered via diverse, complimentary systems. These systems include email, SMS, and voice alerts that are delivered via both cellular and land-line telephones. Monitoring and alerting are active 24/365 and are delivered to at least two CPI employees.

Our escalation procedure is best outlined in our trouble-processing flow-chart below. We basically receive a trouble notification from our system or, rarely, from a customer reporting it. Once the alert has been acknowledged, engineering (who will receive the alert in nearly every case) will process the alert to determine whether it is being caused by a failure or error on the CPI network, isolated to a customer site, or occurring beyond the CPI border. If a customer or 3rd party provider problem is determined, we will offer to assist the customer or provider in solving the problem. If it is a CPI issue, we will further investigate to determine if it is being caused by equipment failure, configuration error, malicious attacks (Denial of Service, virus activity), etc. and if so take the necessary steps to correct it. If the grid reports outages that would indicate a fiber break, line crews will be dispatched to assess the damage and make emergency repairs as necessary.

Escalation of normal work would follow a similar path if necessary. Normal work generally would have the customer's IT engineer or project implementer in direct contact with CPI's senior engineer making any escalation unnecessary (we've truly never had a problem). In virtually every case our time to completion is on or ahead of schedule, and our timeline for completion is generally much shorter than that of other service providers.
